

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A media resources card for use with a converged services platform. The media resources card, which includes one or more arrays of digital signal processors (DSPs), is operable to perform a variety of communication services including recording and playback of voice recorded announcements. A caching arrangement is provided in which a given recording (file) may have either a persistence level or timer expiration attribute or both.